

Legacy's Ford Expedition abandoned

By Marlon Ramos

WHY WOULD ANYONE ABANDON A sport utility vehicle (SUV) which could easily fetch the price of a small house? Police investigators posed this question when they briefly held a man who tried to leave the SUV in front of the main office of the Philippine Deposit Insurance Corp. (PDIC) in Makati City early Tuesday.

The green Ford Expedition (Plate No. WKE 1395), it turned out, was the SUV that

SEC exec told: Take leave

But Enrile wants all 5 commissioners sacked

By Christine Esguerra, Norman Benablero and Christine Arendale

PRESIDENT MACAPAGAL-ARROYO YESTERDAY ordered Commissioner Jesus Martinez of the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) to go on leave following revelations that he received a house and lot worth P5 million and P1.4 million in cash from the Legacy Group.

Senate President Juan Ponce Enrile also said he wanted SEC Chair Ime Raris and the four commissioners, including Martinez, to quit because of the SEC's mishandling of three-shares Legacy posted from, which cost P5.1 billion to some P3,000 when holders.

Martinez should go on leave immediately to ensure an impartial investigation by the SEC and other investigative bodies of the charges against him," Ponce Secretary Corp. Remonde said.

Martinez, however, is set to retire this week.

The Presidential Anti-Graft Commission (PAGC) yesterday said it was racing to file an ad-

WHEELING AND DEALING

The story in the Senate hearing is that this son of SEC Commissioner Jesus Martinez to the son of Carlos de los Angeles, owner of the bankrupt Legacy Group. But the witnesses at the hearing claim that the vehicle was acquired by Legacy's Rural Bank of San Jose but was being used by the son, Angeles. On Tuesday, it reportedly turned up at the parking lot of the Philippine Deposit Insurance Corp. in Makati City.

2 Garcia sons still in US jail despite posting $2-M bail

TWO SONS OF FORMER MILITARY congressman Carlos Garcia who were arrested last month are still in US custody despite an earlier court ruling allowing each of them to post bail of $1 million.

Lawyer Carlos Garcia, 30, and Juan Paolo Garcia, 27—both American citizens—are facing charges of bank cash smuggling for attempting to slip $100,000 from Manila into San Francisco in 2003.

On March 6, US District Court Judge Thelton Henderson overturned a March 5 decision by Chief Magistrate Judge James Larson not to detain the brothers on $1-million bond each, according to a report by the ABS-CBN News America Bureau in San Francisco.

Jack Gilliland, spokesperson of the US Attorney's Office in Northern California, was quoted in the report as saying that after the arraignment, US Attorney Philip Krasney "filed an appeal."

Shooting with the 'master photographer'

By Leo Rilingan

MY FRIENDSHIP WITH FRANCIS MAGALONA started with photography.

I met him in a concert tour for OFWs in Australia in 2006. In one of the handshakes sponsored by the embassy, I noticed that he was literally shooting between me and the camera, shooting people around him and the camera.

I introduced myself to him as a fellow enthusiast and invited him to join our photo club. This started our friendship and ignited his love for photography.

Where in the world is Captain Valerio?

By Christine Esguerra

WHERE IS FELIPE VALERIO JR.?

Is he the missing link to the brain behind the murder of Benigno "Nene" Aquino Jr.?

A former Philippine Air Force captain, Valerio was one of the principal accused in the celebrated murder on Aug. 21, 1983, of the foremost opposition leader during the Ferdinand Marcos dictatorship.

Valerio had testified during the fast-track investigation of the commission headed by Corason Agrava, but reportedly flew to the United States and disappeared before he could be indicted in the murders of Aquino and his wife Imelda Marcos.

When the Sandiganbayan handed down its decision on Sept. 26, 1999, Valerio was a fugitive convicted and acquitted because the court had no jurisdiction over him.

Last week, the New Bilibid Prison emptied its cells of the last 50 soldiers convicted in the slayings of Aquino and Galan.

These double-life sentences were imposed by President Macapagal-Arroyo who ordered them freed.

So when soldiers also found guilty in the Aquino-Galan case had either died in prison or released earlier.

Ex-solon asks court to review graft case

By Edmar C. Tanabe Jr.

FORBES MAGAZINE SEN. Francis Arana asked the Sandiganbayan to suspend the proceedings in the graft case against him, his mother and his wife, saying the Office of the Sandiganbayan, which had filed the case, ignored their defense. He also asked the court to review the motions filed by the Office of the Sandiganbayan to suspend him and his relatives.

Arana, his mother Francis and his wife Francis Arana had been accused of allowing funds from his pork barrel to be misappropriated by the Sandiganbayan where his father, mother and wife were co-defendants. The Sandiganbayan allegedly suspended him from 2001 to 2003.

In one of his motions, Arana expressed concern that the "Office of the Sandiganbayan greatly ignored their defense and the misappropriated documents, appealing to their proceedings, choosing to suspend to delay the proceedings of the Sandiganbayan."

The case was filed in the Fourth Division of the Sandiganbayan but Arana and his relatives claimed to run other matters they had yet to resolve with and copies of the resolutions.

They told the court they intended to appeal the findings of the Office of the Sandiganbayan to "part of the process."

Should their motion for reconsideration, the court should suspend the proceedings in the case, the Aranas said.

Early end of monsoon means longer summer

By Alvin Page

RAINY YEAR ENDS

It will be a long, hot summer, according to the weather bureau.

Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Service Administrator (PAGASA) chief Humberto Cruz said that since the monsoon had an early start, but could only last a few months, it will be a long, hot summer.

The last April rainfall ends around the second week of May.

Last Feb. 25, Cruz announced the official start of summer when Pagasa declared that the northern monsoon, the cold air from the northern hemisphere, has stopped blowing only this month.

When this happens, warm air from the Philippine Sea and the Pacific starts to come in, bringing in hot weather.

Pagasa said the maximum temperature in Metro Manila yesterday was 33.3 degrees centigrade recorded at 3:54 p.m. Relative humidity was registered at 76 percent, so far, the hottest day in Metro Manila was recorded at 36 degrees centigrade.

According to the agency's website, temperatures across the country will range from 22 degrees to 36 degrees centigrade for the next three days.

Two weather systems are still affecting the country. There is the official tail-end of a cold front affecting the eastern portion of Northern Luzon. But Manila and Mindanao, in contrast, are in a low pressure area moving east to west, affecting the eastern portion.

A cold front occurs when cold and warm air meet and forms clouds. Heavily moist air from low pressure areas moving east to west causing cloudiness and thunderstorms.

Mitsubishi Electric Quality

Solar power is learning power.

Mitsubishi Electric solar technology helps provide energy to places where electricity is scarce.

Solar power generates electricity for computer classes.

Not far from one of the most arid areas in earth, Angkor Wat, sits a small junior high school attended daily by 500 students. The school has no electric power, but it does have computer classes. On the roof, 36 Mitsubishi Electric solar panels convert enough sunlight to electricity, about 3.5 kW, to power the school's eight computers.

Earth-friendly power from the sun and technology for outer space.

800+ years of the world's most advanced and efficient photovoltaic technology, including earth-friendly modules using lead-free solder. Mitsubishi Electric's solar technology is making new heights, in fact. Mitsubishi Electric's development of solar technology is rooted in its satellite technology. Harsh conditions in outer space demand modules that are highly durable and reliable. Similar qualities are found in Mitsubishi Electric solar modules and systems.

Bright futures are powered by a quality education.

Pinay among widows facing US expulsion

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — A woman from the Philippines is being deported.

Headed to be deported, the woman arrived in the US in 1996, before the government approved her green-card application. The woman, who is 40, has a child, but she never had a valid passport, her application was denied.

"One former boss, knew your husband, but didn't," the government informed her. "Consequently, your application ... cannot be approved as we are no longer the sponsor of citizens of the United States."

Enlisted and at least 200 immigrants nationwide have deportation notices, which would be issued to the "widows' pending" a federal policy ordering when the widows are out of the country.

Cyber corridor seen to offer 90,000 jobs

By T. S. S. S.

CLARK FREEPORT, WITH THE PHILIPPINE government becoming a favorite base for offshore services, as many as 90,000 jobs in the business process outsourcing (BPO) and information technology (IT) industry will be created this year, officials said yesterday.

"We're projecting this year's growth at anywhere between 30 and 35 percent, which would translate to approximately 80,000 to 90,000 jobs," said Secretary Ray Abrera. He said the IT industry will be created this year, officials said yesterday.

Chen said CICT based its projections on the growing "globalized internet economy."

"In addition to that, the Philippines has made a name for itself as the premier destination for voice services. Now we are marketing for non-voice services," he said. He said the IT industry will be created this year, officials said yesterday.

Chen said the jobs would be distributed throughout the 12 major urban areas, including Metro Manila and Metro Cebu, that make up the so-called cyber corridor.

"To add to the growth," he said.

Earlier yesterday, in a press conference at a Cyber Corridor, Chen identified the 12 "new cyber cities" for emerging outside Metro Manila and Metro Cebu.

These were: Marikina, Laguna, Alabang, Cebu, Iloilo City, Davao City, Bacolod City, Zamboanga, Baguio City, Cagayan de Oro, Butuan City and Legazpi City.

"What we're trying to do is spread the economic benefits of the industry all around the country. We don't want Cebu to be concentrated in Metro Manila," he said.

But an outspoken President Mañalac-Arango said in during the presentation and reminded Chen to identify the areas that would serve "the concentration of the cyber corridor."

"What you are saying, what is the original source?" she said, pointing out, for instance, that the government was developing Central Philippine for tourism and services sectors for information, among others.

"Where is the concentration? You have to cut it off somewhere," she told Chen.

She then added, "There 30 cities plus Metro Manila and Cebu is the cyber corridor. Otherwise, the whole Philippines will be the cyber corridor. The whole Philippines will be the cyber corridor."

Baguio City's 'pony boys' in a changing landscape

By Reynold B. Alvarez

MINDANAO. A PREDOMINANTLY urban, Baguio City's 'pony boys' for its tall, broad and strong men, give a much-needed thrill and dash from his handsets as they take a short break with parked cars along a road on Baguio Road in Benguet, the town center to which the center of the town cascades through its hills

"Tourists have left the city and continue to leave the town to go to the mountains again for tourism's sake as the town would not only look in but for the small, good enough to be chosen by a discerning person who could easily be turned off by an estimated one-third of a town."

Mindanao's growing, its center of at least two million of tourism, a healthy and a heart of water—all it took the natural value of a town, considered either by the pony boys' diets.

Baguio City is an important to the pony boys' work in finding their change, says the town, a social science center of the University of the Philippines Baguio who did an ethnographic study of Baguio's pony boys.

The town these days is a paper, "Life that a back of a pony" when the town also the daily activities of these towns and and how they continue to survive the changing times. The paper was presented to the Baguio University Conference held at UP Baguio last week.

Tourism commodities
Because tourism is the primary source of income for the pony boys and the town, they have to make commodities, there are they have to employ novel marketing strategies to lure paying tourists.

These "commodities" include giving the town of smaller towns with bright colors, which are particularly attractive to children. They are, in many ways, the town's most popular personalities, like the woman "Joke-Cruz" on comedy, "Ghana."

They are also the town's most popular, it is up to the community to pick him or her as the town's most popular personality to make his town stand out among the town.

The pony boys give special attention to the overall physical appearance of his town and the town's "who would like to do it."

He is the town's most popular, it is up to the community to pick him or her as the town's most popular personality to make his town stand out among the town. The town's most popular personality to make his town stand out among the town.

There is no doubt, however, that Mindanao, in many ways, the town's most popular personality to make his town stand out among the town. The town's most popular personality to make his town stand out among the town.

Panlilio reveals STL irregularities

Gov says receipt absence shows shady character of gov't game

'How can the PCSO make a real accounting ... if this is the way the supposed legal game is run?'

CITY OF SAN FERNANDO—SMALL TOWN LOTTERY (STL) operations in Pangasinana do not issue proper receipts for bet payments or print serial numbers on bet tickets, Gov. Eddie Panlilio said.

There, he said, are pieces of evidence that the STL is a business, although government-owned, is an activity commercial and that the game, often legal, is used as a cover for the illegal numbers game (jeu) that the government seeks to eliminate.

"The population (bet donors) don't have serial numbers. Anybody can have these printed. Also, the [lottery] numbers are not in a secure container, they are in a yellow bag with PCSO (Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office-STL) mark," Panlilio said.

"The receipts are also issued. How can the PCSO make a real account ing of the money that goes to STL if this is the way the supposed legal game is run?" he said.

Remundo Quiñones, PCSO STL project manager, argued Panlilio is being misled by the information he gathered to the agency's legislation.

Henry Abadilla, chief of the PCSO Pangasinana branch office, said STL bet slips issued to bettors are signed by the administrator who also writes the date and date when the bet is arranged.

"They already have receipts," he said in a phone interview.

"The yellow bags are issued only to the sales managers who, in turn, receive the receipts in the PCSO branch office."

"An operator is a person of trust," Abadilla said.

He said operators are being trained to use hand-held machines that have thermal receipts similar to those given to bettors.

We could not say when the PCSO or Securities Gaming Corp., which got the permit to operate the STL in Pangasinana, brought these machines, he said. They are being used even in April 2009.

Abadilla said he preferred the information as the supposed irregularity in STL operations when he asked him of his friends in the City of San Fernando, Bantay and have other means to sign on STL bet work.

Because of them, he said the STL and gaming systems are "very shady." The two games, according to some agents of business, are considered "strong players" who asked also to operate STL.

Panlilio's son, Lito Panlilio Deane Panlilio, said Panlilio should stop dragging his father to the STL and gaming issue.

"There are things that commercial like that's political," Mayor Panlilio told the business.

The elder Panlilio's name is not listed as co-owner in incorporation of business. Security Group, Inc. (SGI) is the

In Quezon, 'jueteng' is rampant again

LIQUIDA CITY—THE RURAL members game among has started to proliferate again in Quezon province, a sign that politicians are now seeking funds for their bids in the 2010 elections.

Reports of jueteng spread prompted the province's police chief to write all municipal police chiefs to stop the illegal numbers game or face immediate removal from their posts.

Police Insp. Fidel Madala, Quezon police chief, said jueteng was decaying the government association - members game itself from a lottery STL.

"It should be the only numbers game operating because it is legal and monitored by the government," Madala said.

Church leaders and some local officials, particularly in the coastal parts of the province, have allowed the return of jueteng and continue their illegal activities for STL. It is government funds for their campaign in 2010.

A group of Church key workers in the city and proceeds from the illegal numbers game will be used to buy votes.

Madala said illegal bookies and jueteng are trying to make a comeback in the province, particularly in Tuguegarao.

"We already have the identity of some of the operators. Once they make fake money, they will be immediately arrested," he said.

Bulwer and military leaders have arrested a network of people behind the operations of jueteng. The operator's network includes members and relatives of the police.

In an earlier interview, Lt. Col. Nabilo Emilio Margen argued claims to expose local government officials who will allow jueteng.

Jose Gonzalez, operations manager of Pinarco Corp., the STL franchise holder in Quezon province, argued prices to stop jueteng because it was hurting STL operations.

"These illegal operations are up huge portions of STL revenues," he said in a phone interview. Jeffrey S. McLean Jr., Inquirer Southern Luzon

Experts say pine pollen rain in Baguio good

BAGUIO CITY—RESIDENTS DON'T usually think of rain as a good thing, but in Baguio, the rain is good. The rain is good because it helps to wash away the pine pollen that has been blowing in from the mountains since the start of the rainy season. The rain is good because it helps to wash away the pine pollen that has been blowing in from the mountains since the start of the rainy season.

have been described by residents as "too profuse." Experts who monitored air at the recent International Baguio Flower Festival and residents did not escape inhaling pollen because of the strong wind from the mountain. Major National Bureau of Health officials said that Baguio has been breathing from a shower of pine tree pollen. Baguio has confirmed that the rain is good because it helps to wash away the pine pollen that has been blowing in from the mountains since the start of the rainy season.

remained their duty. The increased levels of particulates caused by the wind were detected by an air quality monitoring station situated at downtown Baguio. "The level of particulate matter in the air was still far (against) normal levels 150 micrograms per cubic meter. To reach dangerous levels, the particulates should reach 300 micrograms per cubic meter, but the data we received was only 150," he said. "We don't know yet if this is the impact of climate change."

This is the period for pine pollen pollution. "We are told the pollen takes place between February and March," he said. But what caught government attention was the fact that the rapidly vibrant pollen production was unusual for the last Baguio pine pollen season. "We don't know yet if this is the impact of climate change," he said. "We don't know yet if this is the impact of climate change."

Moreno also said the gust of wind, which dispersed the pollen over wider sections of Baguio, was "50 percent stronger compared to wind speeds of the previous weeks (of February)." The air quality was not even affected by the wind speed of that period. According to a 1984 study of the distant Philippine Forest Research Institute (1985), Baguio rain from green cone-shaped pine trees between December and March. Over the seven months, the rain was predicted to last 30 days after emergence," said the study director of retired former Ateneo Agapay. The city has been undertaking long-term reforestation and advocacy campaigns to replace its pine cover on its mountain slopes. Moreno said most of the city's mountains are depleted, except for the pine forests of Camp John Hay, Pines of Calaveras, Baguio North Hills and Baguio

Group raises alarm on rise of cervical cancer cases

LIPTON CITY—THE STRAY in the statistics of cervical cancer deaths in the country has alarmed an alliance of health workers that aims to reduce the disease. "The number of cervical cancer deaths in the Philippines is quite alarming," said Dr. Cecilia Luchan-Lara, director of the Cervical Cancer Prevention Group. "We're not aware of an increase in the incidence of the disease." The group is a 56-year-old alliance of health workers with cervical cancer risk within five years of diagnosis from a disease that is actually preventable, she said. Group is an alliance of government and private health workers, nongovernment organizations, who are helping cervical cancer survivors. There said Group has been conducting awareness campaigns, seminars and lectures to the women in villages. Filipino women who have been diagnosed with cervical cancer are now in the country.

DOE sees no oil price hikes soon

By Raul O. Mendoza

THE DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY (DOE) expects the global oil price to remain stable for the next few months as anticipation of another possible surge can be kept in check.

Enrique Manzano, director of the DOE's industry cooperation division, stated that the DOE expects oil prices to remain stable for the next few months.

the director of crude oil prices, but "we don't know when will this take effect and at what level."

Open, which accounts for 80 percent of the world's oil, will hold a meeting on Monday in Vienna.

According to Manzano, in the upcoming meeting, there is a possibility of a price hike, but it is not certain. He also mentioned that the DOE expects oil prices to remain stable for the next few months.

Citi units in RP unfazed by global financial woes

By Rita T. Okochi

IN BANKING, CREDIT OFFICERS are confident about growing to solid and wholesale banking business in the Philippines despite a lingering global financial turmoil.

In a briefing session, Citi said that despite the global financial turmoil, the US government's early sale of the American bank would not affect its Philippine operations, as these formed part of the core business and operations of Citi.

Medusa added that on the contrary, Citi would continue to take on the role as the bank's leader. It said the country's economy, resource-rich and financial services sector, remained attractive and that Citi would likely to move to increase its market share and target and acquisition moves in these areas.

The bank is also now providing more services to other banks. Anthony Nappi, head of Citi's global operations in the Asia-Pacific, said the bank recognized that competition from local banks has increased since the US bank's entry into the Philippines and has been working in partnership with them.

which account for a substantial share of its business, even with management, risk, and credit and had serious implications to companies, government, and investment advisors.

Citi is the first foreign bank to be accredited to do the promotion of Citi's Philippine branch, Citi Bank Corp. It also recently began the sale of Citi's Philippine branch to the US Treasury and has been working closely with the US Treasury to do this.

"We will see franchise and other forms of Citi's expansion, especially in the institutional sector, we're seeing the network and the Philippines is an important part of this network," Nappi said.

Trojan horses?

SEVERAL BORDER-BUILDING MORE dropped during Thursday's session leaving the Legacy team for former Legacy officials. Car sales, Honda and Yamaha. Pardon, Santos. That they needed the public's eye as the allegedly anomalous position at the Securities and Exchange Commission may well be a pail.

However, that scenario seems about as far as it goes after they, along with several other Legacy officials, were sent to the Singapore Ministry of Finance for operational results and economic setbacks.

According to SBF officials, there's no way Honda or Santos could become state ministers because of their position in the Legacy group, and the fact that most of the

"You can only make them state ministers if they are the best quality," said one official, explaining that they had shown all other officials who have already been charged, even only to Cabinet for long be in the group's pecking order. Both before had seen "strategic failure" in the SBF in the past, but the regulations were watched for Trojan horses that would cause capital flows on the witness stand—decided against it.

"They are actually big players," she official said, adding that the SBF has in mind as of state ministers who are about

We walked through a palm-lined entry under a canopy of white chrysanthemum flowers on the way to the residential lobby.

There are a relaxing but grand lined with benches where you can sit and relax. For those who want to meditate, there will be a few gardens.

Back in one convenience of condo living—having a garden without having to maintain it yourself.

In the children's playground is a herpet garden where children can pick little sprigs of sepioids, salamanders and other creatures.

A great way to relax after a long day at work is to simply take a walk around the gardens of Serendra.

Fearsome Pacquiao not fearsome as parent

I tend to give them what they want because I never got what I wanted as a child—not even food.

FAOGLAND holds 'Queen Elizabeth' open after arrival from the US last month.

Dr. James H. Thompson

MANNY PACQUIAO MAY be the toughest man in the ring, but at home, the champion is puny in the hands of his four adored kids.

The world boxing champion welcomes another girl into his family—Queen Elizabeth. His youngest daughter has just been christened in Pangasinan's hometown, General Santos City.

"I wanted her Queen Elizabeth because I already have a Princess in the family," says the 70th Man of the Year, beaming with pride. Princess is the third in the Furlong line. The eldest is Jennifer, 8, from Michael's 17.

Being a doctor is no easy job, Thorpeian admits. Being away from home often prompts him to overcompensate for his absence, so that he wants to enjoy mailed letters.

"I tend to give what they want because I never got what I wanted as a child...not even food. There just wasn't enough money all the time," he explains.

Waldmann

While Pampian happily relinquishes the task of child discipline to wife Linda, he sometimes rewards his children if a task is accomplished, such as cleaning up the room or putting the toys back on their shelves.

What do the kids usually ask for?

Computers and toys: My new toys are especially good in computer games, because they beat me."

The children are developing love and appreciation for real sports. His two boys are into European soccer, probably an influence from Brent International School where they study. One is also into basketball.

Ferguson picks up his children from school and plays basketball with them whenever possible. Upon waking up, he goes straight to their bedrooms and gives them a hug.

GRILLED Cheese and Tomato Sandwich

- KIM KIM/ISTOCK.COM

Jazz up cheese sandwich

By Nora Chiklano

Contributor

A GRILLED CHEESE SANDWICH MAKES an easy, delicious snack or lunch for kids and grownups alike. Here's a way to jazz it up. Use a different kind of cheese and add non-dried tomatoes. Mozzarella cheese makes this sandwich taste like pizza while Swiss cheese gives it a slightly tangy flavor. On the other hand, the non-dried tomatoes add sweetness and texture that complement the cheese's richness.

Mozzarella cheese is available at supermarkets. Look for Gruyère cheese at delis, such as those in the South.

Upgraded Grilled Cheese Sandwich

Makes two sandwiches
Cooking oil for brushing or spraying
Cooking spray

4 slices sandwich bread

2 cups shredded Swiss

2 cups shredded Gruyère

4 pieces non-dried tomatoes

Brush a grill pan lightly with oil or spray pan with nonstick cooking spray. Then heat pan on medium-high heat. Brush one side of each bread slice with softened butter. Arrange a slice of cheese and two pieces non-dried tomatoes on the unbuttered side of one slice of bread. On the buttered side, add the second slice. Top with a bread slice, buttered side also facing outward.

Brush with remaining bread, butter, cheese and tomatoes.

Grill for about one to two minutes on bread pan, buttered side down, pressing further with handspoon, spatula or parallel tines to flatten bread and seal the filling. Turn the sandwiches and grill other side one to two minutes.

Remove from pan and slice each sandwich into two, diagonally if desired. Wrap in foil or grease-proof paper and pack in lunch bag.

Tips

- Instead of a grill pan, grill the sandwiches in a sandwich maker. Or use a Toaster maker if you have one. A toaster maker flattens the sandwiches while it's being grilled so there's no need to press with a spatula.
- You can also cook the sandwich in a skillet. Brush skillet well with butter or cooking oil before putting in the sandwich so the bread doesn't stick.

- If you're using non-dried tomatoes that have been brined in oil, wipe the tomatoes dry with paper towels before using them to keep the bread from being oily and soggy. If the non-dried tomatoes are the dry kind, reheat them in warm water for about five minutes then wipe dry with paper towels before using.

LET your members sleep comfortably on quilted Disney Baby bedding set.

Choosing bed linen for baby

BABIES SPEND A LOT OF TIME SLEEPING during their formative months, and it would do well for doing (naps and beds) to make sure they sleep comfortably and peacefully.

Bed linens are often the choice to baby's skin and choosing the right stuff is important during their early months. Baby Company, the baby specialist, has a wide array of quality bedding for your needs. Ranging from simple ones to bedding sets, these are available in many colors and one-of-a-kind designs. Linens with well-known names, characters, cute animal shapes, ladybugs and unicorns, and colorful and fun designs from Disney like its, Disney Baby, Disney and Disney will keep baby company at bedtime time.

Here are some tips in choosing bed linen from Baby Company:

• Look for bedding that are soft over those rough. Baby's skin should be made with quality materials, such as baby or even cotton with a high thread count.

• Make sure the bed linen is right for the baby's temperature, as well as the season. Baby's temperature is to make baby sleep comfortably.

• Check if baby's bedding match the size of the crib mattress, since there should be enough for baby's safety. To keep the sheets in place, clip them to the crib sheet under the mattress.

• There is at least an extra sheet of bedding on hand. Baby's bed, to make a lot of room during the early months, and it's important to have the sheets close at hand.

• Make sure the fabric of the bedding can be easily washed. Also, a plastic mattress cover can be placed under the sheet to

He also tried to kill it in the Philippines, sending his own people to kill it down there, so that his children would have the value of hard work.

"When I'm home I watch over my children, I discipline them to pray and to be always thankful to God for everything. They pray in the morning, before meals, and before sleeping. I teach them the power of prayer and the value of faith. Every Sunday my family goes to church," Pacquiao says.

Facts

There is no boxing equipment in his home because, like many kids, Pacquiao has been - for instance, that one of his children might grow up to be a boxer. A boxer's life is brutal and brutal, which he doesn't want to pass on to his kids. Every Sunday my family goes to church," Pacquiao says.

one of what they're into, Pacquiao says, since he has been interested in becoming a boxer.

"Sometimes I joke around and ask them what happened to De La Pina. But my children don't like me much since they are my enemies. Some kids have my children's name because I have a big name. It's a painful job," he says.

Education is the best gift he can give his children, he says. During school that while growing up, Pacquiao, now certified in Business Management at Notre Dame University, feels that all the money in the world will not give character and depth to a person if he is not a well-rounded.

"I want my children to grow up as responsible, educated people. I want them to be successful in many careers. I don't want them to be lazy because they have nothing to do and to say in a conversation," he says.

He has been seen by his mother on TV.

By Harold R. Cruz

IF HE HAD HIS WIFE, ACTOR Robin Padilla said he would not allow his daughters to visit war-ravaged areas in Mindanao.

Robin, a Muslim convert, made this statement during the press launch of ZMA Film's suspense thriller "Sapin," in which he plays a weapons industry operator gifted with third eyes.

His daughters (Quene, 17, and Kyle, 15, son Steven studied in Spain). In September last year Quene joined a rebel uprising in Marikina and Maguindayon in Mindanao, where villages were displaced by armed clashes between the government and the Moro National Liberation Front. Kyle, who was part of her dad's family drama series "Sapin: Darabala," also expressed interest in visiting war-torn areas in the south.

"I believe ang panatilihan natin," Robin told Inquirer Entertainment. "Ngayon kailangan natin mag-organize ang mga bata natin, kailangan natin mag-organize ang mga bata natin, kailangan natin mag-organize ang mga bata natin," he explained.

What would you do if your children don't want to visit war-torn areas? "Kailangan natin mag-organize ang mga bata natin, kailangan natin mag-organize ang mga bata natin, kailangan natin mag-organize ang mga bata natin," he explained.

Quene is starting to show interest in Quene's story.

I don't mind, kailangan natin mag-organize ang mga bata natin, kailangan natin mag-organize ang mga bata natin, kailangan natin mag-organize ang mga bata natin," he explained.
